"MA DA": ONE OF THE MOST TERRIFYING ASIAN DROWNING SPIRITS SET TO HAUNT CINEMAS

In the dark waters of the Mekong River, corpse collector Le confronts Ma Da - the vengeful drowning spirit, after it abducts her daughter. Determined to save her child, Mrs. Le embarks on a desperate rescue to prevent her child's ghostly fate beneath the waters.

Prepare for a bone-chilling journey into Vietnamese folklore with "Ma Da," an upcoming film that delves deep into one of Asia's most terrifying drowning spirits.

"Ma Da" brings to life a haunting tale passed down through generations, warning of the malevolent spirit that lurks in riverine regions. This cinematic adaptation promises to immerse audiences in a gripping narrative steeped in cultural intrigue and supernatural suspense.

Filmed over 35 days amidst the eerie mangrove forests of Nam Can, Ca Mau, "Ma Da" features an exceptional cast led by Viet Hung and directed by NGUYEN Huu Hoang, a seasoned filmmaker born in 1991 and a graduate of the Directing Department in Malaysia. Hoang's international experience includes work in Indonesia, Malaysia, and Hong Kong, where he served as a production assistant to director Ang Lee during the filming of "Life of Pi" in Malaysia.

His domestic credits include "Murder in The Lense" (2018) and "Glitch" (2021). Directing his first spiritual-themed film and the first of its kind on the big screen, the director shared, "This project is a significant challenge for me, and I hope the audience will not be disappointed."

"This film explores the depths of Vietnamese spiritual folklore in a way that will leave audiences spellbound," said the producers - Nhat Trung. "It's a unique opportunity to experience the eerie tale of Ma Da brought vividly to life on the big screen."
